Opinion Farming

We can't keep eating as we are - why isn't the IPCC shouting this from the rooftops?

George Monbiot

It's a tragic missed opportunity. The new report on land by the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC) shies away from the big issues and fails to properly represent the science. As a result, it gives us few clues about how we might survive the century. Has it been noble? Was the fear of taking on the farming industry - alongside the oil and coal companies whose paid shills have attacked it so fiercely - too much to bear? At the moment, I have no idea. But what the panel has produced is pathetic.

In its crucial land and climate report, the IPCC irresponsibly understates the true carbon cost of our meat and dairy habits

How could the IPCC work better for you?

- Work with IPCC Focal Points from your country
Each IPCC Member country has a National Focal Point (NFP) which has been identified by the relevant authorities in the country. You can find their details on the IPCC website: www.ipcc.ch
- Become an Observer Organization to the IPCC
Any non-profit body or agency, whether national or international, governmental or intergovernmental may be admitted as an observer organization (subject to acceptance by the Panel). See the "IPCC Policy and Process for Admitting Observer Organizations": www.ipcc.ch
- Participate in IPCC Sessions
Participation of Government representatives in IPCC sessions ensures that your country's voice is heard (nomination is by NFP). Representatives of observer organizations may also attend. Contact: ipcc-sec@wmo.int
- Organize and Participate in Outreach Events
Outreach events create awareness about the work of the IPCC and its findings and are carefully tailored to the specific regional, national and stakeholders' needs. Contact: ipcc-media@wmo.int
